Session I: ORCID Overview by Mr. Hitesh Kumar

Mr. Hitesh Kumar, Scientist-C, provided an overview of ORCID, which stands for Open Researcher and Contributor ID. ORCID provides a unique digital identifier for researchers, helping distinguish them from one another even if they have similar names. It ensures proper attribution and recognition for researchers' work and facilitates easier linkage and sharing of research outputs across different platforms, enhancing the visibility of researchers' contributions and professional activities.

Researchers create an ORCID iD, a 16-digit unique identifier, which can be linked to their publications, grants, and other professional activities. ORCID integrates with various systems like publishers, funders, and research institutions. It is encouraged for researchers at all career stages and is often required by journals, funding agencies, and institutions during the submission and application processes. This session highlighted the importance of ORCID in managing research identities and ensuring proper attribution of work.

Session II: Introduction to Shodh-Chakra: A Gateway to Researchers for Resources by Mr. Hitesh Kumar

Mr. Hitesh Kumar emphasized the transformative potential of Shodh-Chakra in enhancing the research experience by providing a comprehensive, integrated platform for managing all aspects of research. Shodh-Chakra is an online research management tool designed to support researchers throughout their research journey. It provides a structured framework for organizing, managing, and tracking research activities.

Session III: INFLIBNET Activities & Services by Dr. Kannan.P.

Session III focused on the activities and services provided by INFLIBNET. Dr. Kannan P, Scientist E, IU-UGC INFLIBNET Centre, Gandhinagar, Gujarat, conducted this session. He introduced INFLIBNET (Information and Library Network) Centre, its mission, and its role in the academic and research community in India. He explained how INFLIBNET facilitates access to information resources for higher education and research.

Dr. Kannan.P. highlighted the e-Shodh Sindhu consortium, which provides access to a wide range of electronic resources, including e-journals, e-books, and databases to academic institutions. He explained how this initiative supports research and learning by providing high-quality resources at a reduced cost. The Indian Research Information Network System (IRINS) was discussed as a platform for showcasing the research output and academic profiles of faculty and research scholars. Dr. Kannan demonstrated how IRINS helps in creating comprehensive academic profiles, facilitating collaboration, and enhancing the visibility of researchers.

Other INFLIBNET Services:

The session also covered various other services offered by INFLIBNET, such as the Integrated e-Content Portal, the National Digital Library, and training and capacity-building programs. Dr. Kannan provided insights into how these services support the academic and research community in India.

Session IV: IRINS Overview by Dr. Kannan.P.

Dr. Kannan highlighted IRINS (Indian Research Information Network System), a web-based research information management platform designed to collect, manage, and showcase the research activities and outputs of academic institutions. He explained the main features of IRINS, which allow researchers to create and maintain comprehensive academic profiles. IRINS seamlessly integrates with academic databases, institutional repositories, and funding agencies, automatically collecting and updating research data from various sources. It enhances the visibility and accessibility of researchers' work, facilitates networking and collaboration among researchers, and provides tools for generating reports and analytics on research performance. Mr. Hitesh Kumar highlighted the importance of IRINS in organizing and promoting institutional research outputs effectively.
